ABSTRACT

This document presents an annotated bibliography of the literature pertaining to family and marital counseling from 1950 through 1985. It was developed to consolidate some of the well known names of family and marital clinicians into a ready reference form and to have a selected bibliography of authoritative writing in pastoral and in gerontological counseling. The bibliography is divided into three major sections. The first section, Family and Marital Counseling 1950-1985: A Selected Annotated Bibliography, contains 57 annotated entries. The second section, Selected References for Pastoral Counseling, lists 14 references. The third section, Selected References for Gerontological Counseling, lists 20 references. References in the pastoral and gerontological sections are not annotated. Also included are a list of reference sources and a name index. (NB)

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this bibliography is manyfold. It has been prepared for the following reasons:

to bring together some of the many well known names of family and marital clinicians, I became familar with during my course of graduate study, "Pastoral Counseling at Iona," in a ready reference form;

to have a selected bibliography of authoritative writings in pastoral and in gerontological counseling, and to share with my friends with whom discussion from time to time centered around how helpful a bibliography of this nature would be to us.

I acknowledge Fr. James Lloyd, C.S.P., Ph.D. and Barbara Witchel, Ed.D. for their assistance. They suggested the names of and/or the works of primary clinicians in their respective fields which I have included in this bibliography.

After Patrick Tufano, M.S.S., C.S.W. expressed his interest in utilizing this bibliography for the Marital Counseling course, which he teaches, a name index was prepared. It is included along with other slight revisions in this second reproduction.
